I. Agrarian Crisis to Co-operative Budgets and Peasant Protests Across India

In fact a long economic crisis and agrarian crisis in the countryside along with types of working class protest under attack from the far right, which then becomes the long period of 1990s class and mass protest which again failed from 2000 – 2019, which was a return to the crisis, and finally one can argue one is back to the left and center-left budgets, liberal laws and even monopoly capital with Ericsson telecom capitalism, and this then mediates with Deterior capitalism which is also a international monopoly capital. Along with this comes state sector developments such as Linux affiliation and even forms of public banking developing with even types of co-operative planning and international educational integration in its 8 percent growth rate in India which defeats the neoliberal 7 per cent which in turn was a ideological statement because it involved the opposite features of growth stories.

II. From Center-Left Budgets, and Peasant Protests to the World – Nunes, Macron and Syriza in Europe

In fact there is Spanish peasant protests with working class mass protests which characterizes Spain recently while France develops large working class participation in the mainstream and Syriza is leading a large working class and middle class protest model – all of this means that the European left is now also winning – with a management of EU economics and crisis as we speak.

III. Cuba and Algeria – with Latin American New Left Tide

In fact Cuba is leading large mass participation as well, along with Algeria's recovery in economics to Algiers' new development of French-Moorish type of Europeanised city led development.

All of this together means that Renaultism is in fact something like Fordism – the cheap life and he elite cultural capital together forms the masses.
